Chillikomban weakened after fight with jumbo, died of exhaustion, finds autopsy

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE
@ Coimbatore

TWO days after the death of Chillikomban, a wild elephant who fell into a contour canal and was swept away, forest officials said the elephant had been weakened by injuries sustained in a fight with another elephant and was starving since a couple of days. Referred to as Chillikomban as its tusks resembled green chillies, the 40-year-old wild elephant's carcass was retrieved on Sunday morning after being carried along the 49-km canal to Thirumurthy Dam.

The clarification by forest officials comes in the wake of a section of online media portals in Kerala alleging that the animal was unable to bear the pain and ended its life by falling into the canal.

Autopsy revealed two large wounds beneath the abdomen and under the tail | EXPRESS

The postmortem, carried out by a team of three veterinarians, revealed two large wounds beneath the abdomen and under the tail.

According to D Venkatesh, Chief Conservator of Forests (CCF) and Field Director of the Anamalai Tiger Reserve (ATR), "Two major wounds penetrated approximately 15 cm into the body. Maggots were found infesting these wounds. Based on these observations, it is evident that the injuries were sustained during a fight with another elephant. Moreover, we observed several minor injuries on the tusker's body. The elephant had not consumed any food for three to four days preceding its death, and no food particles were found in its stomach during the postmortem," he said.

"The elephant likely attempted to enter the water due to these injuries. However, since it was in a severely debilitated state due to starvation and major injuries, it entered the PAP canal where it was swept away by the strong current. Due to extreme exhaustion, the elephant was unable to climb out and eventually drowned," Venkatesh added.

Meanwhile, a video of Chillikomban, portrayed by animal lovers as the "hero" of Nelliyampathy in Kerala and Navamalai in Tamil Nadu for its non-aggressive behaviour towards humans surfaced on Monday. The video showed the elephant raising its trunk towards the staff who were part of the rescue efforts, while being swept away in the contour canal.

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE
@ Coimbatore

BHARATHIAR University will conduct the Common Eligibility Test (CET) for admission to PhD programmes for the 2026-2027 academic year through the Computer-Based Test (CBT) mode, starting this academic year.

The examination has been scheduled to be conducted on May 30 and 31 at a government-aided college in Peelamedu.

Bharathiar University Registrar R Rajavel told TNIE, "Until last year, this exam was conducted manually, with students writing the examination on OMR sheets for 1.5 hours. The exam had 50 questions, and students had to answer at least 15 correctly to qualify. During the manual exam, students had to wait at least three days to know their results after the evaluation of the candidates' answer scripts."

"But this time, we are conducting the exam through CBT and candidates can know their scores immediately after completing the examination without waiting for three days. If students have any appeal regarding the questions, they can contact us, and the examination committee and technical team will provide an explanation," he said.

He said that there would be no issues in framing the questions and that a mock test was also recently conducted in the lab at an aided college.

"Through this test, benefits such as paperless examinations, reduced exam conducting costs, time savings, and quick result processing are available to students and the university," he added.

He further said that this test has been conducted through the CBT method by Periyar University for the past five years.

According to sources, applications were invited from candidates between April 6 and May 10, and around 2,550 applications were received for the PhD programmes offered by the university's departments and affiliated colleges.

Showroom fined ₹15K for selling defective vehicle to man

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE
@ Coimbatore

THE District Consumer Dispute Redressal Commission directed a two-wheeler showroom to pay ₹15,000 as compensation to a 60-year-old man for deficiency in service and mental agony caused by a defective vehicle. Ramasamy Senniyappan, a resident of Arasur in Coimbatore district, purchased a new two-wheeler from a showroom in Papanaickenpalayam in 2024. According to his petition, he noticed visible scratches immediately after he took delivery. As facing issues while driving, he took the vehicle to the showroom. Though the showroom staff took the vehicle for repairs, the problems persisted. The petitioner was assured of one-year free service at the manufacturer's authorised service center. However, when he approached the service center in Chinniyampalayam, the staff allegedly refused service, claiming the vehicle was old and the free service period had expired.

Aggrieved, Senniyappan approached the consumer court seeking remedy. After hearing the case, Justice R Thangavel and members ruled in favour of the complainant.

Officials accused of demanding bribes to process tax refunds

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE @ Coimbatore

MSMEs operators have alleged that officials from the Commercial Tax Department are demanding a 10% bribe to process long-pending refund claims on penalties.

According to complaints, for the past two days, department officials have been summoning applicants who had applied for the refund of penalty amounts paid years ago.

"Industrialists, who claim they committed no violations, are allegedly being asked to pay 10% of the refund amount as 'commission' through their auditors. Officials allegedly promised to close the files immediately once the bribe is paid," said J James, Coordinator of Federation of Coimbatore Industrial Association (FOCIA), a conglomerate of 25 MSME industrial associations.

"While checking the finished goods, flying squad officials from the commercial tax department impose fine, citing issues in receipts. Entrepreneurs have no option than paying the penalty. During the appeal, they can reimburse the penalty after proving they were not found guilty. To claim back the penalty, the officials are now demanding the bribe," he said.

"Firms that have waited for years to get their legitimately paid penalty amounts back are now being forced to pay bribes," he said and added that this demand is creating a severe financial burden on small entrepreneurs and micro industries already struggling with cash flow.

He appealed to the chief minister to intervene and take action. Complainants further alleged that any resistance or questioning of the officials results in threats of fresh penalties under other sections of the tax laws.

Despite attempts, officials from the Commercial Tax Department were not available for comment.

Set up de-addiction centres, give post-rehab support for addicts: Social forum to CM

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE
@ Coimbatore

A Coimbatore-based social forum has petitioned Chief Minister C Joseph Vijay to set up free de-addiction centres across the state, and roll out an integrated programme linking de-addiction, livelihood support and employment.

S Basha, coordinator of the Namma Mettupalayam Social Welfare Association, also demanded to expansion of treatment and counselling facilities at the de-addiction centres at government hospitals.

Basha noted that while many families wish to send their loved ones for de-addiction treatment, they hesitate because the household's livelihood suffers while the person is in rehab.

The association demanded to expand well-equipped free government de-addiction centres in government hospitals across the state, offering medical treatment, mental health counselling, family counselling and social reintegration programmes, provide temporary livelihood assistance to families of those in treatment, self-employment support for women and priority access to welfare schemes.

They also demanded that the government ensure employment opportunities, self-employment loans and continued rehab support in the post rehabilitation period, so recovered individuals can live with dignity in society.

It also urged the state government to create a dedicated, integrated special action plan.
